Kaili’s advice for future INDS students is to keep trying, don’t give up, and don’t hesitate to ask for help. Currently, Kaili is interning at Kennedy Krieger Institute as a Clinical Assistant in the Neurobehavioral unit. After graduation, Kaili hopes to attend graduate school to become a Physician Assistant, while continuing to work at the Kennedy Krieger Institute.

12. Daryl Rosenberry

B.A. INDS: Psycho-Social Perspectives on Community

Faculty Advisors: Carolyn Tice - Associate Dean of Social Work, Jason Schaffman - Director of Clinical Training

INDS Advisor: Jill Wrigley

Spencer Rosenberry came up with his degree after noticing the disconnect between veterans and the community. His degree in Psycho-social Perspectives on Community aims to find a better way to structure the campus community to assist veterans. He is currently in the process of receiving a federal grant to create a nationwide program for veteran, student, and community interaction through service. His advice for future students is, “Don’t limit yourself, and don’t be afraid of the evolution of ideas.” Spencer says the INDS program has “prepared me by opening myself up to policy, and directing me so my ideas can do work.”

By Kathryn Hardy

Did you know…

Stephen Freeland was a park ranger on a desert island after he graduated college

Did you know…

Steven McAlpine starred as Count Dracula in a theater production?